

THE FARM

Bounty Community Farm is a 3-acre, educational farm located in the heart of Petaluma. As part of our mission to make healthy, fresh food available to all, we are growing 40 different kinds of delicious vegetables, herbs, and fruits.

THE BOUNTY BAG

The Bounty Bag program is a partnership between the local community and Petaluma Bounty. By joining our Bounty Bag program, you not only receive a weekly bag of our high-quality, fresh produce, but you are directly supporting our farm with a steady income that helps us grow healthy, delicious food for all.

HOW IT WORKS

Our harvest season runs 22 weeks, beginning in June and lasting until November. A typical share feeds 2 to 4 people per week, depending on your cooking habits. Bags are available for pickup weekly at the farm on Tuesdays.

FARMING PRACTICES

We are an educational farm that is designed to be a model of ecological health. Our diversity in crops is our greatest strength against pest and disease problems and we maintain a soil preservation practice through compost additions, cover cropping and rotations.

We like to say that we grow healthy soil that feeds healthy plants that nourish healthy people. We never use synthetic fertilizers or pesticides, or materials not approved for Organic production.

WHAT DO I GET?

Every week our members receive a bag of 7–12 different vegetables, herbs, and fruit at their peak ripeness. Our orchard on the farm is now bearing fruit and we also have strawberries. Our downtown location and small scale operation make it possible for us to pick your produce at maximum ripeness and say-day freshness.

Here is a preview of a typical box:

June–July:

Salad Mix
Chard
Lettuce
Carrots
Cucumbers
Spring onions
Cilantro
Strawberries
Peaches/Plums

August–September:

Tomatoes
Peppers
Green beans
Zucchini
Beets
Basil
Corn
Pears
Apples

You will also receive a weekly newsletter with recipes, nutrition information and a farm update.

WHAT IS PETALUMA BOUNTY ALL ABOUT?

Our mission is to co-create a thriving local food system with healthy food for everyone through collaboration, education and promoting self-reliance.

Through our programs, Petaluma Bounty is building community food security through Access, Education, Engagement, and Empowerment.

Current Programs include:

- Bounty Hunters volunteer network improves the quality of food offered by emergency food distributors by collecting and redistributing food that would otherwise go to waste in our community.
- Local Affordable Food Incentives increase low-income consumers' purchasing power of locally grown fruits and vegetables through Farmers' Market LIFE and sliding scale farm stands.
- Food Literacy, Experiential Learning and Re-Valuing our Food System increase knowledge and interest of where and how our food is grown through field trips, service learning, volunteer opportunities, workshops
- Healthy Behaviors change attitudes and appetites for healthy food and active lifestyles through ALIVE, farmers' market tours, and partnerships with health care agencies.
- Job Training expand our community's capacity to grow its own food by employing youth & building skills and confidence of new gardeners, and empowering others by sharing our knowledge.
