

Petaluma Bounty Community Farm!

Internship and Volunteer Opportunities

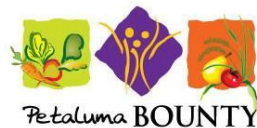

What is Bounty Community Farm? Bounty Community Farm (BCF) is an urban, educational farm dedicated to providing sustainably farmed produce to the Petaluma community. Through community donations, grants and volunteer workers, we strive to make locally grown, sustainable produce available to all by offering reduced prices to low income Petaluma residents and by donating thousands of pounds of food every year to local families in need. With the support and participation of the community, Bounty Community Farm has created an alternative local food system model that is more accessible and responsive to all community members.

What opportunities are there for volunteers and interns? Over the past three years, BCF has developed innovative programs and initiatives including a food CSA subscription, educational visits and workshop series, a thriving orchard, partnerships with other local organizations, and much more. Be a part of this growing community farm and experience for yourself what it means to help create a sustainable, local food system. Opportunities to gain valuable management and coordination experience and develop sustainable agriculture skills are available in the following areas:

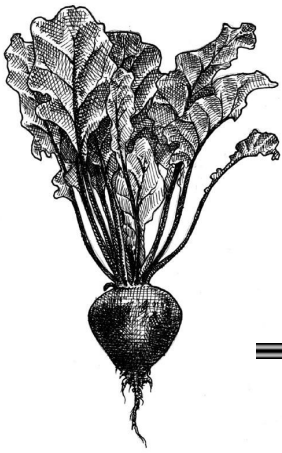

- Farm management
- Greenhouse/Propagation
- Farm Education
- Farmers' Market and Farm Stand Sales
- Harvest and CSA coordination
- Volunteer management and recruitment
- Outreach and media – video, photography, writing, social media

What qualifications are required? Interns and volunteers need to have good communication and organization skills, enthusiasm for learning and working as part of a team in community, and willingness to have a lot of fun while doing so! Enthusiasm for working outside in the fields with the farm team as part of an on-farm learning experience is encouraged.

Please contact, Kaleigh Spollen Education & Engagement Coordinator, for more information at 707-364-4866 or education@petalumabounty.org

Healthy Food for Everyone
www.petalumabounty.org

Join Petaluma Bounty

Become a Volunteer!

Attend a Community Workshop!

Bounty Community Farm Opportunities

55 Shasta Avenue across from Lucky on Petaluma Blvd. N

New Volunteer Orientation, Every 2nd Saturday of the month, 10-11am

Come learn about Petaluma Bounty Programs and opportunities for engaging with our volunteer program.

Farm Volunteer Drop-in Hours, Every Saturday 9am-12pm & Thursday, 9am-12pm

Drop by and help out with projects around the farm, including seeding, planting, harvesting, and composting. For a weekly email about farm activities, sign up for our weekly farm email list by emailing farm@petalumabounty.org.

Bounty Market & Stand Sales - We operate a Farm Stand at Bounty Farm on Tuesdays, at the Petaluma Health Center on Thursdays, and at the Walnut Park Farmers Market Saturdays. Help set up and operate the Bounty market stand!

Outreach and Special Events- Support outreach campaigns, staff our information table at various events, and help with our annual events.

To sign up for our email list or for more information, please contact education@petalumabounty.org

Community Farm Workshops

Check our website's Event Calendar for a complete list of farm and garden related workshops in our Community Farm Workshop Series. Past topics include beekeeping, container gardening, flower bouquet making, Health Cooking from the Dominican Republic, and Fermentation. Want to share your skills with the community through a workshop? Let us know! Email education@petalumabounty.org.

Bounty Hunters Opportunities

Join us as we turn a food waste problem into a food access solution! Join other gleaners to harvest and/or drive fresh fruits and vegetables from local backyards, orchards, and farms to food pantries, senior centers and other locations. Contact bountyhunters@petalumabounty.org for more information.

